This statement is published jointly on behalf of Bloomberg LP, Bloomberg Index Services Limited (BISL), Bloomberg Trading Facility Limited (BTFL), and Bloomberg Finance L.P. Introduction

Bloomberg is committed to acting ethically and with integrity in all our business relationships. Although it is for our business partners to manage their operations, we expect those in our supply chain to align with our values and operate in accordance with the principles of the Bloomberg Supplier Code of Conduct <https://www.bloomberg.com/procurement> and the Bloomberg Impact Report <https://www.bloomberg.com/impact/downloads> and in full compliance with all applicable laws and regulations.

The Bloomberg Supplier Code of Conduct outlines Bloomberg's expectations for supplier conduct regarding labour and human rights, health and safety, environmental protection, ethics and management practices.

DUE DILIGENCE AND RISK ASSESSMENT

To identify and mitigate risks associated with slavery and human trafficking, we have in place systems that:

- Increasingly require suppliers who participate in a formal tender process (Request for Information or Request for Proposal) to accept Bloomberg's Supplier Code of Conduct;
- Monitor potential risk areas in our supply chains; and
- Protect whistleblowers (see further information on our Whistleblowing Policy in the "Policies" section below) to encourage reporting by both employees and third parties without fear of retaliation or detrimental treatment.

POLICIES

In addition to our Supplier Code of Conduct and Bloomberg Impact Report, as part of our overall commitment to safe and ethical working practices and safeguarding of human rights, we have in place the following policies:

- An annually reviewed Anti-Slavery Policy making the prevention, detection and reporting of modern slavery in any part of the business or supply chains the responsibility of all of those working for Bloomberg or under its control.
- An annually reviewed policy setting out General Standards of Conduct and Ethical behaviour, requiring staff to conduct themselves and Bloomberg business with the highest ethical standards, with integrity and within guidelines that prohibit actual or potential conflicts of interest or the perception of impropriety; and

Bloomberg

- A Whistleblowing Policy, which provides further information on how whistleblowing can take place and who to contact should an employee know or suspect an instance of slavery or human trafficking has occurred.

TRAINING

Bloomberg LP has partnered with a vendor to provide mandatory e-learning training to targeted employees on the significance and risks of slavery and human trafficking and our employees' obligations in this context. As part of an ongoing review of our learning and development programme we are enhancing our training on modern day slavery to upgrade the offering in this area and further expand our target audience.

As part of its training programme Bloomberg LP also requires all employees to undertake an annual review and attestation of policies relating to standards of conduct and ethical behaviour. We are committed to maintaining these steps which seek to ensure no modern slavery or human trafficking in our supply chain or in any part of our business.

MONITORING AND IMPLEMENTATION

If issues are identified in relation to modern slavery, these can be reported to Human Resources or through the Bloomberg Ethics Hotline, which is accessible 24 hours a day, 7 days a week, 365 days per year.

Our Global Strategic Sourcing, Workplace Operations and Supply Chain areas shall take responsibility for implementing the objectives considered in this statement and we will monitor progress of our efforts in this area.

This statement was approved by the Boards of BISL, BTFL and by the Chairman of Bloomberg LP, and BFLP and is made pursuant to section 54(1) of the UK's Modern Slavery Act 2015.
